Опис вакансії

The client is one of world's leaders in internet marketing and producing direct-to-consumer products. They develop tools for financial planning and security, which are used by more than 1 million people. The growth in the number of customers made the company radically restructure their IT system, and DataArt is currently helping the client to solve this task.

The system is improving with the use of latest architectural approaches, which are based on modern enterprise technologies and high-performance frameworks.

We're searching for a specialist who will work on a major project using popular technologies and modern approaches: MSSQL, NoSQL, RabbitMQ, microservice architecture and RESTful services.
